Boards for All

\(Visit Website\)

Webcast training series about nonprofit
Boards of Directors, Advisory Committees or Councils.

Historically, people with limited literacy, diverse backgrounds and intellectual disabilities have been excluded from participation in making public policy or lawmaking activities that impacted their lives. Because information is central to decision making and successful community participation, clearly designed materials in plain language must be available to ensure all people have opportunities for involvement.

We believe participation in civic associations and boards of directors of nonprofit organizations increases effective policy making and meets the needs of our diverse communities. We know people with varied abilities and backgrounds can play a meaningful role in advocacy and governance activities.

Boards for All is a web-based learning series designed for a wide range of users to understand the purpose of a nonprofit board of directors, and the responsibilities of its members. It provides tools (videos, worksheets and resources) for users to learn about to be an effective member of a board of directors, advisory committee or community council. As a plain language governance toolbox, Boards for All demonstrates basic boardsmanship for self-advocacy groups, boards of directors, advisory committees to large statewide agencies.

Boards for All videos are captioned and narrated in English, Spanish and Mandarin. Worksheets are also available in three languages. The series is a joint project of Eastern Los Angeles Regional Center, CA State Council on Developmental Disabilities and Board Resource Center. In 2012 Boards for All received the ClearMark Award of Distinction from the Center for Plain Language, and in 2014 was selected by the Interactive Media Awards for Outstanding Achievement in Website Design and Development.
